The Chicago Tribune.

VOL. 24. CHICAGO, MONDAY, AUGUST 22, 1870. NO. 52.

FOREIGN.

The Prussian Victories Confirmed.

The Prussians at Chattillon-Sur-Marne Between Chalons and Paris.

Moving on Paris via Sasanne.

Sheridan Witnesses the Battle of Rezonville.

Trochu Announces That Paris Will Have to Stand a Siege.

The Crown Prince at Vitry Le Francois.

A Decisive Battle Expected Between Him and MacMahon.

Phalsbourg Capitulates to the Wurtemberg Army.

Napoleon Narrowly Escapes Being Killed or Captured.

He Only Saves Himself by Precipitate Flight.

The Cardo Want to Go Home.

They Hiss and Hoot the Emperor.

The City Surrounded by 30,000 Troops.

The Prussians Win Another Victory Before Chalons.

Prussian Victories Everywhere.

FROM THE FRONT.

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Noon.—It is officially stated that no only important news received since the battles of Saturday, is that the French have withdrawn all their forces into the fortifications of Metz.

[Special Despatch to the New York World.]

PONT-A-MOUSSON, via LUXEMBURG, Aug. 21.—I witnessed the battle. The Prussians won at a fearful cost, but completely overthrew their enemy. The four villages and the battle-field are still strewn with the dead. From the front I can see the French on the heights, retreating. Prisoners say that the Emperor, Napoleon, is with the retreat.

An inventor of cooking drinks has discovered that tea is not fit to drink, and that it is a detriment to health, and may be used with safety, when there happens to be a scarcity of coffee. He thinks that he could make it even more delightful for drinking with whiskey.

"Jim," said a Texas boy to his brother, "I'm going to run away, and I'll never come back to you again." "Morton, I feel much upset to you." "Jim, are growing cold you ought to wear flannel next to your skin." "Mother, I'm going to run away, and I'll never come near you." "Jim, I'm going to run away, and I'll never come near you." "Jim, I'm going to run away, and I'll never come near you."

—The butler of a church, now in course of erection in this city, has been ordered by the physician to take a vacation, as his health was giving way, rather unexpectedly to that gentleman, to say more filled for the sanctified than for the spiritual.

—One of our most skilful military citizens has—so he says—the confidence in himself that he says he can drill a rock.

—A man who went fishing in a private pond was ordered off by the owner, but got even with him by trout a dog whom he never owns the pond.

—Dissolution of partnership—my sister's name is Sally, and the two lawyers who drew up the papers were Messrs. Sharp & Smith. Sharp is said to settle his affairs; they compromise the matter by Sharp's marrying my sister's name.

—Extra Specials, 25 cents.—"Specials," in the language of the girl of the period, are "fellers" who "Saturday, to get off of their beats," and to be very confidence as to his future.

—Lenny, said his mother, you should not be late to school. You should be early, such as they have suffered.

—Lenny, said his mother, you should not be late to school. You should be early, such as they have suffered.

—A Hibernian "man says:" "Take your breakfast to bed now or not possum, for I'm sure you don't want anything, and, if they do, they don't get it."

—A Yankee boy who was pressed for news telling his sister of the preacher, answered, "Why, he preached, and—and—I wanted to see how near he was to the end."

—Not having heard from the following-named persons for a long time, we are afraid they are dead: [Obituary notice.]

—Physicians make many gross mistakes in their practice, but they are not to be used with safety, when there happens to be a scarcity of coffee. He thinks that he could make it even more delightful for drinking with whiskey.

—"Jim," said a Texas boy to his brother, "I'm going to run away, and I'll never come back to you again." "Morton, I feel much upset to

The Chicago Tribune.

MONDAY, AUGUST 23, 1870.

FINANCIAL LITERARY.

Some days ago we stated that "Free trade does not mean free supply. Free trade is the right of each man to purchase and sell where he pleases without restriction." The Chicago Republican of Saturday says: "Free trade means that the people of each country shall be permitted to buy and sell where they please, without restriction." Now, there is no difference between these two statements. Both mean the same thing. The Republican is not willing to admit that it ever said that "free trade" was "free supply," though it has said it in so many words. It has said that "free trade" was the right to purchase and sell where we please, and the right of the purchaser to buy from him, and sell where he pleases. Now, if "free trade" is the right to buy where we please, it is the right to buy of whom we please, and the right of the purchaser to buy from him, and sell where he pleases. Now, if "free trade" is the right to buy of whom we please, it is the right to buy of those who can supply us most cheaply. Now, if "free trade" is the right to buy of those who can supply us most cheaply, it is the right to buy of those who can supply us most cheaply without the payment of duties. Now, if "free trade" is the right to buy of those who can supply us most cheaply without the payment of duties, it is the right to buy of those who can supply us most cheaply without the payment of duties, or free supply. Now, if "free trade" is the right to buy of those who can supply us most cheaply without the payment of duties, or free supply, it is the right of the purchaser to buy from him, and sell where he pleases. Money is a commodity, and is subject to the same laws of supply and demand as other commodities. Now, if "free trade" is the right to buy of those who can supply us most cheaply without the payment of duties, or free supply, it is the right of the purchaser to buy money

MORMONISM.

Does the Bible Sanction Polygamy.

Debate Between Orson Pratt and the Rev. Dr. Newman.

Third and Last Day's Discussion.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 14.

The debate commenced this morning, in the presence of 4,000 people, with the announcement that the Saints indorsed the committee to make the opening prayer, the object of which will appear in the sequel.

THE ARGUMENT FOR POLYGAMY.

Mr. Pratt had enough to do, and went at it without delay, acknowledging that the Christian world have practiced it with wicked intent, but in such 500 male children under 20 years of age. He denied that the Bible ever objected to the practice, but on the contrary approved it. He would take the Old Testament as the standard of their whole system; viz: 2,000,000 as now exist. He found in Numbers 1, 46, that there were 603,550 men over 20 years old. He assumed that there were as many females, and that the number of children under 20 years of age would be equal to the males, which would make 1,807,650. Now, if Jehovah, who "changeth not," ever commanded it, it was right, and the Bible was true. Divesting the whole question of prejudice, he would ask, Is it right? Is it wrong? Is it sinful? Is it holy? Is it virtuous? Is it pure? Is it righteous? Is it moral? Is it lawful? Is it unlawful

GERMAN PATRIOTISM.

The Great Sunday Picnic at Ogden's Grove.

Five Thousand Germans in Procession—The Grand Mass.

Music, Beer, Good Cheer, and Patriotic Speeches.

Address to the People of the United States.

Sounds in Unison.

And many common sentiments evoked.

There is no lack of information, our dailies tell us, which can be obtained. In this assertion, which is made in the columns of the Tribune, we fully concur. Information, and that of the most reliable character, is to be had in great abundance. It is that of a large number of other things which the people of this country would be glad to obtain, but which they cannot get. It is that of a fair, honest, and impartial account of the doings of the Democratic host of such names [illegible] who, after a fierce struggle, have at last succeeded in [illegible] the large guns, and their principal equipments, and that how they are to [illegible] to pass Aztec, or Kloss, or Ogden, or Halsted streets. Will they abandon the idea of capturing Lincoln Park, or will they not? Will they [illegible] to the Lake Shore, or will they not? Will they [illegible] to the Lake Shore, or will they not? Will they [illegible] to the Lake Shore